

FREDERIC

A Breath of Fresh Air

At two feet tall, this woven abaca number provides all the natural camouflage you need for tree roots (or toys).
Lubid Abaca Basket, $630, fschumacher.com

Powder-coated aluminum does wood one better in this perfectly pared-down box planter.
Azimuth Cross Planter, $3,119, janusetcie.com

This industrial-chic looker is ingeniously perched atop four hidden casters for easy transport.
Irony Outdoor Pot Planter by Maurizio Peregalli, $770, artemest.com

The knotted rope handles on this steel vessel prove that delight is in the details.
Vineyard Planter, price upon request, formationsusa.com

Produced in Provence, this glazed urn is a rhapsody en vert.
Anduze Strie Vert Emaille Planter, $1580, authenticprovence.com

Woven by a French concern with a 150-year history, wicker puts a fresh spin on a classic Versailles planter.
Vallabrégues Planter, price upon request, ateliervime.com

Made of copper and zinc, this artistically ringed specimen belongs on your fancy bucket list.
Ribbed Planter, from $815, bronzino.co.uk

A texture that's always welcome: classic latticework, especially when combined with finials.
Wood Trellage Planter, $1,950, accentsoffrance.com

Lightweight, innovative fabric creates a topiary tote that steals its looks from your favorite bag.
Batylite Plant Pot, $98, bacsac.com

3. TREE HUGGERS Consider it a migratory pattern: These containers are so good-looking, you'll want to make their move indoors permanent. Oversized, artful and bearing no resemblance to their garden variety terra-cotta cousins, they're ideally sized to hold an ornamental tree for a year-round breath of fresh air.